HIKERS TIP

.During the north west monsoon the sea can become rough & is not advisable for swimming.

THE ROUTE

The Trail winds through slopes of granite rock, patches of woodland, open areas, small river valleys and over exposed rocky ridges, which have been well paved, with the addition of small bridges in several areas.

Across the sea on your right, Silhouette Island and North Island are your constant distant companions.

About 3/4 of the way you will reach the "Ros Legliz" ; a cave formed by huge boulders which have tumbled together in the distant past.

As you near the end of the Trail, you can admire your destination; Anse Major, a beautiful bay surrounded by forest-covered mountains.

HOW TO GET THERE

Taking the Bel Ombre-Danzil Road, follow the road uphill for about 200m. Take the right at the fork in the road passing through the settlement of Danzil and following the yellow route markers.
